

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE in ART EDUCATION

The Art Education Teacher Certification Program at UW-Madison offers you excellent opportunities to:

- Discover your passion for teaching art in a hands-on, project-based, theory-infused, collaborative learning environment.
- Work directly with children and adolescents in school and community-based field placements in every semester of the program.
- Earn a Bachelors of Science degree in four years, culminating in a career-ready, k-12 Wisconsin teaching license in art education.
- Study with world-renowned art and education faculty in a range of rigorous and engaging studio, art history, educational psychology, and curriculum and instruction courses.
- Experience personalized attention, small class sizes AND all the advantages of a Big Ten university.
- Connect with the city of Madison's vibrant arts community, including the Madison Museum of Contemporary Art, the Chazen Art Museum, Sector67 and BUBBLER maker spaces.

Program Components:

1. All first-year art education students begin with the Foundations Program, a series of interrelated studio and lecture courses, preparing you for further study in studio art and design. UW-Madison also offers First Year Interest Groups and The Studio: Creative Arts and Design Residential Learning Community to help you transition into college and establish connections to other like-minded peers.
2. Aesthetics work gives you an opportunity to study both the history of art and contemporary developments in the visual arts. As part of its aesthetic programming, the Department of Art hosts the fabulous visiting artist series, in which contemporary artists from around the world visit campus to share their work, provide specialized workshops, and/or critique student projects.
3. The art education program's extensive studio experience offers a broad introduction to a variety of media and artistic processes, including 2D, 3D and 4D courses. Once you complete required studio classes, you'll meet with the Art Education Program Director to map a focus of study for the remaining 12 - 15 elective studio credits.
4. Education courses and fieldwork include a four-semester sequence of classes introducing you to the teaching profession, including child development, learning theories, inclusive schooling strategies, curriculum and instruction, history of American education, two rigorous art education methods courses, plus 200 hours of practicum and 18 weeks of student teaching.
5. Throughout your degree program, you will make liberal studies selections from a wide variety of humanities, literature, social studies, science, math, and English courses. These provide an incredible opportunity to develop interests and skills outside of art and add dimension to your major area of study, preparing you not only for the work world but also to live interesting, fulfilling lives as educated, creative, engaged citizens.
